About Camp Little Giant

Established in 1952 and accredited by the American Camping Association, Camp Little Giant was the first university-affiliated camp in the United States specifically for people with disabilities. The camp is a program of Southern Illinois University located at the Touch of Nature Environmental Center, a 3,300-acre outdoor education site. Located on the shore of Little Grassy Lake, Camp Little Giant is surrounded by the Shawnee National Forest and hilly woodlands with access to caves, cliffs, meadows, coves, and adventure. Constant activity takes place at the camp's boat dock, beach, arts and craft area, dining hall, and lodges. Camp Little Giant is a pioneer in camping, serving individuals with a wide variety of backgrounds, ages, abilities and disabilities.
